Pro Wrestler Tags DC Comics Artist, to Show Kids Anything is Possible

New York, NY -- September 27, 2018 - With as much impact as his signature move, the Boston Knee Party, “Anything is Possible: The Eddie Edwards Story” takes fans of all ages inside the ring for an inspiring look into world champion wrestler Eric Maher, aka Impact Wrestling’s Eddie Edwards’ journey to the top of the independent wrestling scene. Maher teams up with co-writer and DC Comics artist Mark Poulton to deliver highlights from his incredible career. The only man in history to win the Impact Wrestling, Ring of Honor, and GHC World Heavyweight Championships—professional wrestling’s triple crown, Maher recounts his days as a kid dreaming of a wrestling career, to training with the legendary Killer Kowalski, to living and training in a Japanese dojo in the footsteps of his heroes.

The world is full of underdogs, but as “Die Hard” Eddie Edwards, Eric Maher proves that with hard work and determination his mantra of “Anything Is Possible” can be true for anyone.

On sale October 2, 2018. For more on Eric Maher/Eddie Edwards and to download a complete media kit, visit ericmaherbooks.com.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Eric Maher, aka Impact Wrestling’s Eddie Edwards is a professional wrestler who has held championships all over the world, most recently as the superstar known as Impact Wrestling’s “Die Hard” Eddie Edwards. He was born outside of Boston, where he still lives today. Eric has battled and overcome career threatening injuries to win the IMPACT WRESTLING, RING OF HONOR, and GHC world heavyweight championships. As “Die Hard” Eddie Edwards, Eric Maher is the first ROH Triple Crown winner in history, and the only man to win the triple crown in both TNA & Ring of Honor. Follow Eddie on Twitter @TheEddieEdwards.

Mark Poulton is a writer/artist who has worked for DC Comics, Image Comics, and Arcana Studio. He is best known for his children’s book series, A CAT NAMED HAIKU, which was nominated for Best Single Issue Story in the 2011 Eagle Awards.

Poulton co-wrote SAVAGE HAWKMAN for DC Comics during the New 52, and relaunched Rob Liefeld’s AVENGELYNE at Image Comics in 2011. Mark’s latest book, PIZZA TREE was co-written with his 7-year-old son, Chase and was recently nominated for BEST KIDS

GRAPHIC NOVEL in the 2018 Ringo Awards. Follow Mark on Twitter @koniwaves.

Impact Wrestling's
Eddie Edwards

As “Die Hard” Eddie Edwards, Eric Maher proves that with hard work and determination his mantra of “Anything Is Possible” can be true for anyone.

With as much impact as his signature move, The Boston Knee Party, Anything Is Possible: The Eddie Edwards Story (Sevenhorns Publishing; October 2, 2018, $24.99) takes fans of all ages inside the ring for an inspiring look at the life of Eric Maher, aka Impact Wrestling's Eddie Edwards.

A tag team master, Maher teams up with co-writer and DC Comics artist Mark Poulton to deliver a smashingly illustrated and action-packed peek into his incredible journey to the top of the independent wrestling scene. The five-time Impact Wrestling World Tag Team Champion recounts his days as a kid dreaming of a wrestling career, training with the legendary Killer Kowalski, and later living and training in a Japanese dojo in the footsteps of his heroes.

Eddie Edwards starts out as an underdog, but he overcomes defeat, injuries, and challenges throughout his career to become the only man ever to have held all three—Impact Wrestling, Ring of Honor, and GHC world heavyweight championships.

As “Die Hard” Eddie Edwards, Eric Maher proves that with hard work and determination his mantra of “Anything Is Possible” can be true for anyone.

ERIC MAHER, aka IMPACT WRESTLING's "DIE HARD" EDDIE EDWARDS

Eric Maher is a professional wrestler who has held championships all over the world, most recently as the superstar known as Impact Wrestling's "Die Hard" Eddie Edwards. Born outside of Boston, where he still lives today, Eric grew up the middle child of three boys. A fan of wrestling since his childhood, it wasn't until his sophomore year in high school that his passion for the business really took off. He received his training from the legendary Killer Kowalski, and went on to live and train in Japan as part of Pro Wrestling Noah.

With the support of his family, Eric has battled career threatening injuries to become the only person to ever hold the IMPACT WRESTLING, RING OF HONOR, and GHC world heavyweight championships. He is a former two-time TNA X Division Champion, five-time World Tag Team Champion, and two-time ROH World Tag Team Champion. As "Die Hard" Eddie Edwards, Eric Maher is the first ROH Triple Crown winner in history, and the only man to win the triple crown in both TNA & Ring of Honor.

While not always being the strongest or fastest man in the ring, Eric has proven he has the biggest heart. He has proven the critics wrong while living his motto, "Anything is possible."

MARK POULTON, CO-WRITER & ILLUSTRATOR

Mark Poulton is a writer/artist who has worked for DC Comics, Image Comics, and Arcana Studio. He is best known for his children's book series, A CAT NAMED HAIKU, which was nominated for Best Single Issue Story in the 2011 Eagle Awards. It was recently adapted as an animated short for Top Buzz starring DC's Legends of Tomorrow's Kiefer O'Reilly as Haiku and Mark as Haiku's owner.

Poulton co-wrote SAVAGE HAWKMAN for DC Comics during the New 52, and relaunched Rob Liefeld's AVENGELYNE at Image Comics in 2011. Once it finished publication, AVENGELYNE ran as an acclaimed webcomic series at Keen- spot.com where it amassed a readership of over 500,000.

Mark's latest book, PIZZA TREE is an all-ages graphic novel co-written with his 7-year-old son Chase, and recently nominated for BEST KIDS GRAPHIC NOVEL in the 2018 Ringo Awards.
